

TeachECONference2024

Online Video Poster Sessions | Programme

Visit ctale.org/teacheconference2024 for more information.

Monday 17 June 2024, from 3pm BST//10am EDT
Track 1: Diversifying Economics – Addressing the pipeline
Marta Martínez-Matute (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid), Nuria Rodríguez Priego (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid), Ana Hidalgo Cabrillana (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid), Andrés Maroto (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid), Sara Pinillos Franco (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid), and Ágnes Pintér (Universidad Autónoma de Madrid)	Gender gap in the choice of Economics: the importance of content, information and students' stereotypes
Stephen Schmidt (Union College)	Developing a Course on Economics and Race in the US

Tuesday 18 June 2024, from 3pm BST//10am EDT
Track 2: Engaging students for success
Creina Day (Australian National University)	Postgraduate Curriculum and Low-stakes Assessment for the Economics of Fertility and Women's Time
Olha Matviiets (University of Exeter) and Debbie Du Preez (University of Exeter)	The use of 'nudging' techniques to improve non-compulsory seminar attendance in two first-year Economics modules at a UK university
Mark Maier (Glendale Community College)	Using Perusall to help students read the economics textbook

Wednesday 19 June 2024, from 3pm BST//10am EDT
Track 3: Innovative ways to teach statistics and econometrics
John Hartman (University of California Santa Barbara)	How to Incorporate Small Activity-Based Lectures in Courses with Large Enrollments
Jonathan Graves (University of British Columbia), Emrul Hasan (University of British Columbia), and Marina Adshade (University of British Columbia)	Using Jupyter to Teach and Assess Econometrics

Thursday 20 June 2024, from 3pm BST//10am EDT
Track 4: Optimizing learning in small groups
Yang Zhang (National University of Singapore)	Shuffle, Play, Learn: Experiential Learning in Game Theory Using “Love Letter”
Tim Burnett (Aston University) and Stefania Paredes Fuentes (University of Southampton)	Diversity in Group Composition, Performance, and Learning: Evidence from Economics
Timothy Wong (National University of Singapore)	Industrial Organization group projects: Identifying price discrimination and price dispersion in the real world

Version: 27 May 2024